Author Bio

Collin Zreet is a native Dallasite, and moved back to Big D after a stint in Austin for college, where he got bit by the craft beer bug.

Now, when he's not working, listening to music, or spending time outside, he is highly engaged in the Dallas beer scene. His experience includes brewing and volunteering at several local breweries on both sides of the metroplex, including Peticolas Brewing and Martin House. When not drinking local commercial brews, he is making his own, under the name Zreet Street Brewing. In 2014, as part of team Panther Street for Brew Riot, they won awards for the Overall People's Choice, 1st place in the Specialty Beer Category (Super Freaker Chili Beer), and took 3rd place in the Ales Category (Uncensored Hefeweizen). They also finished in the Top 10 at the Martin House Inaugural Riverside Shootout homebrewer's competition in 2014 (Border Disorder, a Tripel/Saison hybrid brewed with prickly pear cactus fruit and pink peppercorns). Collin also covers local beer festivals and events for the online culture blog, I Live In Dallas.

Cobra Brewing is one of the newest breweries to the metroplex. They started off as a group of homebrewers, who eventually realized their own dreams of running a microbrewery. They decided to stay local and repurposed dairy tanks as fermentation vessels as an innovative way to save on equipment costs. They currently operate on a 5 BBL system, but are planning to upgrade to a 20 BBL system and will be canning by next summer. In the mean, time they have another 10 BBL system on order and will be selling and distributing 22 oz. bombers of their beer by mid to late October.

Community Beer Company is a brewery located in the Design District that focuses on charitable giving in the community. Head brewer, Jamie Fulton, started off as the brewmaster at the brewpub, The Covey, in Fort Worth (where he also won 3 Great American Beer Festival medals). While at Community, he has won the gold medal for his Public Ale at GABF in 2013. They also just released a brand new Russian Imperial Stout, in which they held an open naming contest. While hilarious names like Putin on the Ritz and Hammered & Sickled didn't make the cut, Legion was the final name chosen.

 @deepellumbrewco

Deep Ellum is the first brewery in Dallas city limits as a result of the most recent craft beer boom here in the metroplex. Their eclectic artwork, cool attitude, and sometimes controversial advertising, definitely give them the laid-back atmosphere that their namesake neighborhood portrays. They like to meld styles for their seasonal offerings, which usually turn out unique beers. Their current head brewer is Jeremy Hunt, previously from Dogfish Head fame.

 @FireWheelBrew

Lifetime Dallas native, Brad Perkinson, decided to get in the brewing business after realizing that an office job was not the right fit for him. He got hooked on great beer after a trip to Munich, Germany for Oktoberfest in 2009 with some friends. Ever since then, he is striving to find better options than the usual American macro-lagers. His brews range from the typical American Pale Ale to the more adventurous Strawberry IPA.

Four Corners Brewing Company EST 2012

Four Corners is nestled in the booming area of Trinity Groves across the Margaret Hunt Hill bridge. Head brewer, John Sims, has worked in several Dallas area breweries before working at Four Corners. He had originally started at Yegua Creek Brewing in 1993 and Copper Tank in 1995, well before the most recent craft beer boom in Dallas. The founding members of Four Corners got their start homebrewing and decided to take the plunge after participating in one of the first Brew Riot Festivals in their native Oak Cliff, back when the festival consisted of a few teams in the parking lot behind Eno's Pizza.

 @grapevineontap

Grapevine Craft Brewery's Sir William's English Brown Ale was recently named the #1 Beer in Dallas for 2013 by D Magazine (though this didn't come without controversy). This beer boasts of nutty aromas and coffee notes. The brewery is off to a fast start. After only being open 6 months, they were already heavily expanded into the Austin market. They will be starting on their new brewery (actually in Grapevine) in September this year, and are halting operations until they are finished building, which is expected by February 2015. Their old brewery in Farmers Branch will be sold to 3 Nations Brewing, which will start production later this year.

Lakewood Brewing Company EST. 2012

Lakewood Brewing started off as another group of homebrewers making beer out of their garage in the Lakewood neighborhood of Dallas. Now they've realized their dream and operate a full production brewery in Garland. While not in the namesake neighborhood of Lakewood, they opened their doors in Garland due to the unfavorable laws inside Dallas city limits at the time of their opening. Their biggest success so far in the DFW beer scene is the Temptress Imperial Milk Stout along with its multiple variants.

- Sit Down or I'll Sit You Down Imperial IPA
- Thrilla in Brazilla IPA
- Wintervention Spiced Ale

www.PeticolasBrewing.com

 @Peticolas

Owner/brewmaster, Michael Peticolas, originally contributed to the burgeoning DFW brew scene by helping to get the zoning laws changed in Dallas to allow breweries to be built within Industrial zones within city limits. He then quickly decided to start his own brewery. He struck gold almost immediately with the 2012 and 2013 Best Beer of Dallas, in Velvet Hammer and a 2012 Great American Beer Festival gold medal for Royal Scandal. His initial small scale approach to the industry is working as he saturates the DFW market before expanding to other markets. You can only find his beers in DFW, with the exception of a few kegs that have been sent down to Austin.

- SeptemberFest Brown Ale
- Sugar and Spice Barleywine

www.MartinHouseBrewing.com

 @MartinHouseBrew

Martin House Brewing Company is one of the more adventurous breweries in the metroplex. Even their launch beers were not the traditional styles normally seen from a brewery, which included a four-grain breakfast style beer and an amped up 9% Red Double IPA. Recently at the Untapped Festival in Ft. Worth, they brought a beer so complex, it does not really fit into any style at all, combining flavors of oak, smoke, and raspberry, all on top of a strong IPA base. They also cater to the local homebrewing scene by hosting local competitions, as seen in this year's Riverside Shootout. The winner of the competition gets their beer made on a large scale and sold in the area (won by the Other Baldwin Brothers).

- Cannonball Scottish Strong Ale
- IPf'nA IIPA

Featured Seasonal Beers:

- Real Good Cream Ale
- Strawbangan' Blonde

www.PantherIslandBrewing.com

 @PantherBrewing

Formerly the Wahoo Brewing Company, Panther Island Brewing decided to change their name. They wanted the new name to reflect the history of Fort Worth, which was nicknamed Panther City after a panther had been sleeping in the main square by the courthouse back in 1875. Still working on getting into the full swing of business, they are currently getting their name out there by participating in local beer events. Most recently, the Fort Worth Food + Wine Festival, where they won Best Brewer at the Burgers, Blues, and Brews event.

Rahr & Sons Brewing Company EST 2003

 @RharBrewing

Rahr & Sons is the oldest currently-running production brewery in the metroplex. Their extended family is also known for their malting company in Minnesota. The largest of the craft breweries in the area, they have also won their fair share of medals in national beer competitions, including a Silver at the Great American Beer Festival for their Scottish Ale, Iron Thistle, in 2012.

Zio Carlo Magnolia Brewpub EST 20XX

Location:

1001 W Magnolia Avenue
Fort Worth, Texas 76104

Tap Room Hours:

Monday-Friday 11:30 to 12:00 pm
Saturday 11:30 to 1:00 am
Sunday 10:30 to 12:00 pm

Zio Carlo is Fort Worth's only brewpub (meaning that they brew and sell their beer on-site). They always have a few of their own brews on tap as well as some from other local, regional, and national breweries. They also have a kitchen and provide an assortment of handmade pizzas and sides. Look for them along Magnolia Street among all of the other great beer places in the area.

Zio Carlo brews a variety of their own beers as well as a rotation of guest taps.

- I So Pale Ale
- Sasquatch Chocolate Milk Stout
- Sugar On Top IPA

www.903Brewers.com

 @903Brewers

903's most popular beer has been their launch beer of The Chosen One Coconut Cream Ale. Its lighter body and slight sweetness, make this an easy beer to drink during those long hot summer Texas days. Though all the way North of the metroplex in Sherman, it is fairly easy to find their beer in the city. Since the release of their inaugural beers, 903 has also expanded into several other traditional beer styles. Also check out the 903 Brewery for a whole range of events including trivia, movie nights, and of course, brewery tours.

Armadillo Ale Works EST 2011

Location:

Currently brewed at Deep Ellum Brewing in Dallas, but will be located in Denton soon!

Featured Year Round Beers:

- Quakertown Stout
- Greenbelt Farmhouse Ale

Featured Seasonal Beers:

- Brunch Money Imperial Golden Stout
- WunderMelon Watermelon Kölsch

www.ArmadilloAleWorks.com

 @ArmadilloAles

Armadillo Ale Works started with a 3rd place finish in the 2010 Venture Creation Contest through the University of North Texas' business school. From there, they became Denton's only craft brewery. While gathering capital, they originally started selling prohibition-style sodas, as they are less regulated in Texas compared to their alcoholic brethren. With contract brewing help from Deep Ellum Brewing Company in 2012, they now sell their beer in 150 retailers throughout Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin, and Houston. After finding success with canned year round beers, they have begun to venture into more non-traditional styles and bottling them in 22-oz. bombers.

Cedar Creek Brewery EST 2012

Out near Cedar Creek Lake Southeast of the metroplex, Cedar Creek Brewery is pumping out award winning brews. After being open only one year, they took home a gold medal at the Great American Beer Festival for their Cedar Creek Dubbel in 2013. The brewery is very committed to the local area in and around the Greater Cedar Creek Lake area. They hire local employees, help local businesses and charities, use local ingredients where they can, and reduce their carbon footprint by using easily recyclable cans, and even distribute in plastic reusable kegs. While they may be located in small town, they are making a very big impact on the DFW beer scene.

Location:

244 E. Cedar Creek Pkwy.
Seven Points, TX 75143

Tours:

Saturday 1:30 and 3:30

Tap Room Hours:

Fridays 4:00 to 9:00

- Franconia Winter Wheat

www.FranconiaBrewing.com

 @FranconiaBrew

Franconia is the first brewery on the eastern side of the metroplex from the most recent craft beer boom. Head brewer/owner, Dennis Wehrmann, grew up in Bavaria and comes from a long line of brewers in Germany. After attaining multiple degrees from brewing school in Germany, he decided to move to the U.S. with his wife, to start a brewery. His beers are made in the traditional German styles and he maintains a very green and environmental friendly practice in the process. He even follows the German purity law (Reinheitsgebot) which only allows him to use the four primary ingredients of beer: malted barley, water, yeast, and hops.

Rabbit Hole Brewing EST 2013

Location:
608 Topeka Ave.
Justin, TX 76247

Tours:
Saturday 12:00 to 4:00

Featured Year Round Beers:

- Rapture Brown Ale

Featured Seasonal Beers:

- Centennial Pale Ale
- Wanderlust Saison
- Off With Your Red IPA

www.RabbitHoleBrewing.com

 @RabbitHoleBrew

After a successful Kickstarter campaign to put on the final touches to their beergarden, Rabbit Hole Brewing finally got off the ground brewing beer out in Justin. Reaching from their home West of Fort Worth, all the way over to Dallas, Rabbit Hole sticks to more traditional beer styles. Like a lot of recent startup breweries in DFW, head brewer and part owner/founder, Matt Moriss, started out as a homebrewer and also became a certified BJCP (Beer Judge Certification Program) beer judge, before completing a course in Brewing Technology from the renowned beer school, the Seibel Institute World Brewing Academy in Chicago.

Revolver Brewing EST 2012

Location:
5600 Matlock Rd.
Granbury, TX 76049

Tours:
Saturday 12:00 to 3:00

Featured Year Round Beers:

- Blood and Honey Wheat Ale
- High Brass Blonde Ale
- Revolver Bock

Featured Seasonal:

- Mother's Little Fracker Stout
- Sidewinder Southwest Pale Ale

www.RevolverBrewing.com

 @RevolverBrewing

Even though Revolver Brewing is all the way out in Granbury, their Blood and Honey Wheat Ale has taken the DFW beer market by storm. Craft beer drinkers and non-craft beer drinkers alike have enjoyed their iconic easy-drinking beer. Though not as popular as their primary beer, Revolver has also created other stellar year round beers and a handful of seasonal offerings as well. Their Saturday brewery tours are a nice vacation from the hustle and bustle of the city, as you can enjoy good craft beer out in country.
